PRIVATE SECTOR Siemens Learning And Development

This was a strategic assignment focused on helping the learning and development re-define their service offering and delivery model.

A series of workshops and sessions were held with the senior management team to:

- Facilitate their understanding of the current position regarding their service offering and key challenges;
- The strategic services that could be delivered and the potential clients;
- The operational requirements to deliver the new services; and
- The transitional plan to move from the as-is to the to-be situation

The assignment culminated in a proposed change project to convert this strategy into reality.
